Indian River State College is developing a Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP) as part of the requirement for our Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) re-accreditation process.

A QEP is a carefully designed and focused college-wide initiative to improve student learning. The selection of IRSC's QEP topic is an important decision the College will make together as employees and students pursue one clear objective: to enhance student learning.

Every ten years, regional accreditation organizations approved by the US Department of Education are required to assess colleges and universities that award federal financial aid. The in-depth assessment process is called reaffirmation of accreditation and 2014 is the year Indian River State College will have its accreditation reaffirmed by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools' Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC).
